Chuma Awanna said he was sitting on the right side of the bus toward the front, paging through a girl's yearbook, when he felt the bus swerve.

"Next, we're sitting up like this," he said, holding his right hand higher than his left. "And next I hear the bus driver say, 'Oh, shoot!' "

Then, suddenly, Chuma was airborne.

His head bumped the roof and he found himself atop a pile of students. Some were screaming, he said, including a friend who was hollering for someone to get off of him.
